WEST PLAINS, Mo., April 23.—Late reports from Summerville, the scene of reports from Summerville, the scene of the recent tornado, are more serious than the report sent from here. Mrs. Val Keel and three children, her hired girl and a hired man, named Matsinger, were killed. Five dwellings and many other buildings were blown away, and a large number of people more or less injured, some it is thought, fatally. The damage to houses, crops and fencing amounts to thousands of dollars. The houses destroyed belonged to Val Keel. John McCaskill, Frank Parrott, William Dyer and George Kirkman.

Speculators Make Their Own Prices at the Opera-House.

An annoying feature of the concert of the opera company at the Metropolitan Opera-House last night was the ner" which the speculators had on tickets. Scarcely a single sent could be obtained at the box-office, and patrons were obliged to seek the speculators. The latter were a half hundred strong, and they were insolent and imperious in their conduct too. They knew they had the seats cornered and demanded correspondingly advanced prices. The people reached the Opera-House in great numbers, and the delay in dickering and bickering caused almost a riot. In fact, the confusion grew so alarmingly that Mr. Abbey sent for police assistance. The speculators were then subdued somewhat.

Of course, all sorts of complications arise, and the toys are toys forever after. There is practically no limit to the performance, and it should be uproar-

A delightful innovation in the arrangement of portleres is to hang over one coped curtain a short projecting lambrequin of the same material, to give the ffect of a deep recess. This is particuarly pretity for rooms that open one into mother, where one seems to have a long perspective of fascinating color. In rooms have a deep frieze and dado the space between these two is now often overed with breadths of velvet slightly caught up at the top here and there, browing the whole into small diagonal

To Keep Bottles from Brenking. It is said that bottles will never break when packed in trunks if they are fortified by two or three ordinary rubber bands around them. A Decorative Table.

An attractive article of furniture may e made of one of the cheap stained tables which have a shelf below to correspond with the shape of the top. Both the top and the lower shelf are covered with China silk. A delicate, well-covered ground is most desirable, or white with pale yellow flowers. The legs are either gilded or enamelled with enamel, which comes in cans at 15, 25 and 50 cents a can. This enamel is a most useful aid to the woman who enjoys house decorating. A kitchen chair, for instance, may be made a thing of beauty, if it happens to be of a quaint or graceful shape, with a can of enamel, yard or two of gilt and the same of Safety Pins. Safety pins are now made so that they work both ways. The shield or brace is attached at the centre, and either end of the pin springs out at a pinch.

These Women Feel Deeply. Not long before she died, Lucy Stone said, in an address to the young girls of Mount Holyoke College: "I never can think now, although I am an old woman and that time is long past, of characters, nor the incidents of such a the epithets and abuse that were once heaped upon my head, and by good and ously funny, even in the hands of new kindly men, without growing red to the roots of my hair." And, as she spoke, the scarlet color flamed up over her shamed expression came to her eyes, Upon the same subject Susan B. Anthony remarks, not without a pardonable bitterness: "There is not a jeer, nor a libe, nor an insulting toke which could be hurled at a human being that has been spared me. I have always been selected as the clown of the Woman's Rights movement, and its laughing-lambs' kidneys, tear the thin white skin and braid. If embroidery cannot be had ounce of benzine the white yoke can be be equally jaunty. The Latest Contrivance.

In eliver, a trinket tray, pin-cushion and ring stand, all in one, is the latest contrivance for my lady's use. It is very handsome and very convenient, and as doubt will become popular at once.
